PHILANTHROPIC AWARD
BOBBY PRESENT

Bobby Present is the President and a founding member of The Steven M. Gootter Foundation. During his tenure as President, the organization has raised over $1 million toward defeating sudden cardiac death. A native Tucsonan, and senior vice president at RBC Wealth Management, Bobby has been a dedicated volunteer in the nonprofit sector for his entire adult life. His focus includes community development, education, health, and leadership development and he is also involved with teens, young adults and diversity issues.

Bobby was recognized by the Steele Memorial Children's Research Center as one of the 2007 "Father's of the Year" and received the Man of the Year award from the Jewish Federation of Southern Arizona in 2000. Bobby currently is a board member of the Handmaker Foundation and he sponsors a mentoring program for interns, including Native American college students interested in financial consulting.

Bobby is married to Deborah Oseran and has two daughters, Claire (married to Cameron Radon) and Naomi, and son Joshua, (married to Melissa). Bobby is an avid tennis player and philanthropist who is convinced that we can each make a positive difference in our communities by sharing our talents and resources.
